MURDER TRIAL WAS COMMENCED TODAY

KARL HAU, FORMERLY OF WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY, FACES A GRAVE CHARGE IN GERMANY.

Special to the Herald.
Karlsruhe, Germany, July 17.—Karl Hau, the young professor formerly attached to George Washington University, Washington, D. C., was placed on trial here today for the alleged murder of his mother-in-law, Frau Molitor. The former high standing of the accused, the mystery surrounding the alleged crime and the recent suicide of Prof. Hau's young wife have combined to attract widespread attention to the case, and the trial will doubtless attract great attention throughout Europe and in America. Notwithstanding the fact that he has been formally examined and pronounced sane by experts, it is probable that mental irresponsibility will play a part in the defense of Prof. Hau. He is represented by eminent counsel, and it is evident that a hard fight will be made to save him from conviction.

Frau Molitor was the widow of the Baden-Baden. On the evening of November 6 last she was called to the telephone in her home at Baden-Baden and received a request to go to the postoffice and get a parcel that was there for her. When passing through a quiet street a shot was fired from behind her, and Frau Molitor fell dead. The man who fired the shot was seen, but he escaped. It is stated that Frau Molitor had been long threatened, and that cunning plots were laid against her. The motive of the alleged crime appears to have been greed for money. Frau Molitor, who was wealthy, it is said, refused many times to comply with Hau's request for money, having given her daughter a considerable dowry, and arranged that she should inherit part of her fortune.

Karl Hau, the accused man, is not yet 30 years of age. He is tall and slender, well educated and of refined appearance. He was just 20 when he married Miss Molitor. It was an elopement, and the young couple began a restless, roving life. Hau had begun to study law at the University of Freiburg, but had discontinued his studies.

While the marriage itself, contracted against the mother's will, carried with it all the elements calculated to disturb the relations between the mother and her children, the continuous applications for money also did not contribute toward improving her relations with her son-in-law. Nevertheless she received the couple into her house upon their visits to Baden-Baden.

THE EVILS OF CONSTIPATION.

Everyone Knows When He is Constipated and Everyone Should Know the Risk He is Running When He Fails to Promptly Correct it.

Any Disease Epidemic or Otherwise to Which He or She May be Exposed is Sure to Result Seriously.

There are two ways to remove constipation; the wrong way is to drench the bowels with a powerful, gripping, drastic cathartic that injures the coating of the bowel channels and produces an early return of the trouble in a more chronic form. The right way is to use a natural, easy and mild laxative that tones up and strengthens the bowels and leaves a healthful influence behind it. Prickly Ash Bitters will empty the bowels just as thoroughly as the harsher cathartics and combines all the tonic and strengthening properties necessary to permanently cure the habit.

Accept no substitute. Insist on having the genuine Prickly Ash Bitters with the large figure 8 in red on the front label.

BOB FITZSIMMONS AGAIN IN THE RING

VETERAN OF PRIZE RING WILL DON THE PADDED MITTS AT PHILADELPHIA TONIGHT.

Special to the Herald.
Philadelphia, Pa., July 17.—Tonight, for the first time since he was knocked out by Jack O'Brien in December, 1905, the veteran Bob Fitzsimmons is to don the padded mitts and face an opponent in the ring. As a part of the entertainment program prepared for the visiting Elks the Washington Sporting Club has arranged for a six round bout between the former champion and Jack Johnson, the big colored heavyweight. It is the first time in a year or more that a fight between heavyweights of known ability has been pulled off in the East, and as a consequence keen interest is manifested in the event. The club expects a record-breaking crowd at the ring-side.

The ring followers are curious to see if Fitzsimmons is "all in," as has been the general impression in sporting circles ever since the fight with O'Brien. If the Australian retains any of his former-time prowess it goes without saying that Johnson will have to keep busy during the six round engagement. In his prime Fitzsimmons would have disposed of a man of Johnson's calibre in very short order. Whether, at forty-five years of age, he is still possessed of sufficient vitality to turn the trick remains to be seen. Many of his old-time admirers do not hesitate to assert their belief that he is still more than a match for a fighter of Johnson's class.

Baden, and she sent them money during their travels.

The sums sent, however, were not so large as Hau demanded. Hence the life of the family was always a distressing story. It is probable too that Frau Molitor's harshness contributed toward increasing the disagreements in the Hau family. At any rate she sometimes made trouble for him, even abroad, by denouncing him as an anarchist to the authorities.

Hau was arrested in London a few weeks after the alleged murder. At the time of his arrest he denied all connection with the crime and has ever since stuck to his story, though it is said that he has made several damaging admissions. At his preliminary examination he admitted that he had been at Baden-Baden up to the time when the murder occurred. It has been ascertained, moreover, that he wore a false beard in traveling from Baden-Baden to England. Frau Molitor's servant girl who answered the telephone on the fatal day asserted positively after the murder that she had recognized Hau's voice in the telephone.

One of the pathetic features of the case was the suicide of Prof. Hau's young wife. On June 8 she was seen to swim far out into a lake near Pfaffikon, Switzerland, and then deliberately sank beneath the waters. Two days previously she had paid a visit to her husband in prison here. She left the prison in a state of the utmost depression and went back to Pfaffikon. A long farewell letter was found in her clothing after her suicide, in which she declared that it was impossible for her to any longer bear the sorrow of living apart from her husband, notwithstanding the charge brought against him. The governor of the prison informed Prof. Hau of his wife's suicide, and a story was circulated at the time that the accused man had then confessed to the murder of his mother-in-law. This story subsequently was found to be without foundation.

Although greatly affected by his troubles and particularly by the loss of his wife, the accused man has continued to bear up well. He has received every reasonable consideration from the authorities and the prison officials. When arrested he had a large sum of money in his possession, and this he was allowed to retain and to spend as he wished. In prison he has occupied a room by himself and has been permitted to have his meals sent from a nearby hotel. He is a Roman Catholic and has been comforted by frequent visits from priests of that faith. He enjoys unlimited reading matter, and his only deprivation has been tobacco.

I am glad to say that I have never had a return of any of those symptoms during the four years that have elapsed and I am evidently cured to stay. Two Kinds of Economy.

YOU can economize in Piano buying in two widely different ways. You can buy a Piano that looks pretty, but concerning which neither you nor your friends know anything, and probably get it for a small sum of money; or you can buy a Piano of established reputation, a Piano that all musicians will unhesitatingly and unreservedly praise, at a money-saving Piano Store. You don't need to be told which is the foolish economy, and which is the wise. There are no better Pianos in their grade than the line we carry.
